

Case Study - Student and Graduate business start-up support

Incremententa deliver a series of boot camps for the University of Derby's Be the Boss enterprise programme. The boot camps look to support the graduates from pre-start to launch. Incremententa also deliver one to one mentoring and advice as part of the programme too.

- Target participants

Any student or graduate within the last three years. Participants are from a wide variety of academic disciplines.

- Support provided

- Development of boot camp and workshop content
- Delivery of all aspects of the boot camp and workshops
- Pre and post event follow up and liaison with the university
- Delivery of one to one business advice and mentoring

- Learning outcomes for the participants

- Is starting a business really for me
- Knowledge of the Business Model Canvas
- How to conduct effective market research
- Which marketing channels to use
- A greater understanding of the legal requirements when starting a business.
- An awareness of where and how to get funding.
- Increased knowledge of financial planning and its importance.
- How to present and pitch an idea

- Outcome

The scheme is in its first years but has so far successfully supported over 15 graduates to set up their own business.

- Testimonial

"I would like to say a big thank you for the training I received last week, it was most engaging and informative, one of the best courses I have done" – Textiles design graduate

"The workshops were very engaging. I particularly enjoyed working through the business canvas model step by step. Makes my business idea come to life!" - Fashion design graduate
